Important statements from Stillitano, who explains the growth of Italian football in America as well: "The popularity of football in the US has increased enormously in recent years: fans are now 54 million out of a population of 320 million, and it is a young audience unlike Europe."

Stillitano has in mind a series of events, programs and social initiatives to be able to conquer the American people and another of the projects is to bring back the Super Cup in the States, where he has been absent since 2003, as well as organizing a series of friendlies. Serie A, according to Stillitano, can undermine La Liga to second place, behind the unattainable, at least for now, the English Premier League. Here are Stillitano's words: "Serie A has come out of a difficult moment and boasts numerous American properties. Even if few are aware of it, today is the most spectacular European championship, where the most goals are scored".
